PURE MILK ONLY BY INSPECTION

Dr. Kellogg Says Animals Should Be Regularly Examined and Free From Disease

Pasteurization does not make dirty milk either clean or safe, and pasteurized milk is even in some respects less safe and wholesome than dirty milk, Dr. John H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Michigan, declared today at the joint convention of American Association of Medical Milk Commissioners and Certified Milk Producers Association of America at Harvard Medical School.

He said the only way to insure milk is to obtain it from animals that are regularly inspected and known to be free from disease, and that is primarily fed and cared for in such a manner that there is no opportunity for contamination after leaving the cow's udder.

The speaker added that experiments on a broad scale in New Zealand have shown that the mortality rate of infants under one year may be brought down from 10 per cent to one-half of 1 per cent through proper milk.

Every child, he said, needs one quart of milk a day and every adult a pint and a half of milk to insure adequate supply of all food elements and the efficient utilization of what foodstuffs.

Charles W. Warren of the Boston News Bureau and proprietor of the Ochs Park, Columbia, said some babies have been slain in the United States by impure milk, the chief of the world put together. He said milk may be largely because of the quality of the milk supply in other countries.

At least 30 per cent of the 50,000 babies who die every year in the United States are said to die from milk. He said he had been declared, with prompt elimination, that the milk supply in this country is not so well controlled by the supervision of a national milk commission.

IRISH CRISIS IN DAYS

England Withdraws or None of Natives Will Be Left, De Valera's Aide Predicts

There can be no compromise between Irish independence and British imperialism, Harry Boland, secretary of the Gaelic League, declared today at a public address at the National Theatre.

The speaker said that the spirit of the Gaelic League is to have Ireland free and to have the British out of the country in thirty days or there will not be a living soul left on the soil.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Irish Women's Educational League, the president of which, Mrs. Nora B. Mitchell, presided. Other speakers were the Rev. Canon Thomas Murray, national delegate of the A. H. C. C. in the Irish National League, the speaker of the people voted for an Irish republic in the last elections, and 13 per cent in 1918. He declared the Irish were satisfied they have free and better and have demonstrated before the world that the military power is powerless to crush their spirit.

The men who comprise the Irish Republican army, the speaker said, are volunteer soldiers who must fight in their own way. They are not, as the British say, a "military force" but a "people's army" with excellent morale, and are on the offensive. Boland said that the Irish cannot be made Anglo-Irish. "The Irish cannot be made Anglo-Irish," he said, "but they can be made Irish."

He said the Irish people are resolved to be free, and a people has not to determine itself as free and they are free. He said Ireland will not surrender her Gaelic tongue, her earlier one of her Gaelic rights for any material consideration.

"There can be no peace with England," he declared, "unless it be on the basis of honor. It will be a peace that will bring contempt to Ireland and probably contempt to Britain."

$10,000,000 Hotel in Park Square

A new $10,000,000 hotel, 13 stories high, with 1,000 rooms, to be known as the Bostonian, will be built on the site of the old Park Square by the Bostonian, Inc., a Massachusetts corporation.

The site is the vacant land bounded by Providence, Arlington and St. James streets and Columbus avenue, taking in all of the block with the exception of the land now occupied by the Park Square Theatre.

This land has been bonded by Joseph H. Dilworth, and plans have been drawn by Desmond Lord. The hotel, it is said, will equal any high-class structure of its kind in the country.

Charles S. Averil, manager of the Bancroft Hotel in Worcester, has been asked to become manager. It is understood the new Hotel Railroad, owner of the land, is anxious to sell the parcel, which consists of 50,000 square feet.

AUTO DEATH TOLL 43 IN MAY

22 Children Killed in Accidents
Largely Due to Carelessness, Says Registrar

Forty-three persons were killed by auto in the State last month. Twenty-two of them were children. Of those twenty-two children, fourteen were under seven years of age.

"It is unfortunate to have to say that," said State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today, "but practically every one of these fatal accidents was the result of the carelessness of the children and the thoughtlessness of the mothers."

Most of the children were three, four and five years old. The Safe Roads Federation has sent out the schools with its propaganda and few accidents happen to children of school age.

"We have made a careful analysis of the accidents and have found that in almost every case the driver was helpless to prevent them. The children jumped or climbed onto the side or rear-end of the truck. They ran from behind one car in front of another."

"Mothers, keep your young children in the yards. Keep them away from the streets, unless accompanied by older children. Avoid the grief you suffer after these accidents happen."

Registrar Goodwin announced today that six operators of motor vehicles who run with his number only will lose his license.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

A charming bridesmaid at a coming June wedding will be Miss Louisa Hoar, who will be an attendant at the marriage of her sister, Frances Hoar, to Reginald Foster of Boston. The wedding will take place June 15 in St. John's Church, Washington, among the guests being President and Mrs. Harding and Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge.

By BETTY ALDEN

Miss Louisa Hoar will be maid of honor at the wedding of her sister, Frances Hoar, to Reginald Foster of Boston. The ceremony will take place in St. John's Church, Washington, on June 15 and a very important guest will be, for President and Mrs. Harding, Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge will be among the guests.

It will be recalled that Miss Hoar's mother was the wife of the late Congressman Frederick J. Hoar. The announcement of the coming marriage caused a ripple of interest in the families of speakers of the House have been very rare.

Suddenly the answer at Harborview, her Newport summer estate, she proved to be a surprise for Mrs. Paul Fitzgerald, formerly Mrs. Paul Fitzgerald, for the latter will shortly return to Newport after living for two years in Lima, Peru, where her husband, who is a Newport native, is engaged in the shipping business.

Simply it is, vague, even in fashionable Newport, for Mrs. Oliver H. P. O'Brien, who is a native of the city, returned to the world-famous playground of the ultra-rich to lease "Sea Cove," an unpretentious house on the shore of the harbor.

Mrs. O'Brien's "Marble House," as she calls it, is a small, charming house, as well as four other homes, situated in the city.

There were to be field events during the afternoon, and in the evening the class will go to the Newton Club where they will dance the "hat ball" to Boston. In the form of the 11:20 train will carry the happy pioneers back.

Miss Esther Hinchley, of Haverhill, was chairman of the committee in charge. The other members of the committee were James Doyle of Boston, Margaret Quirk of Whitman, Gladys Kingman of Wollaston and Virginia Wilder of Ashby.

Once more it is possible for ambitious members of the younger set to study and travel abroad. A number of girls who will sail on the steamship on an eventful trip.

Miss Grace Ruggles of Brookline, Miss Emily and Jean Harlow of Chestnut Hill and Miss Ruth Chapman of Newton. They expect to spend the winter in Nice.

Residents of Chestnut Hill will be interested to learn of the arrival in the city of the Misses Ruth Chapman and Miss Ruth Chapman.

Webster and Miss Ruth Chapman, who is a graduate from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1912, took charge as resident architect when the new buildings for the State were started. The groom served as major of engineers in the army.

I hear that Mrs. S. A. Taylor and her sister Mrs. Thomas Taylor of the Hotel Brunswick have withdrawn from the heat and noise of the Hub to their summer home on Lake Winnebago, N. H. They expect to make a long season there.

Now that the war is safely over, and conditions slowly swinging back to normal, society and society women are taking the best of these first opportunities to travel.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Merrill, of Norwood, sail from New York on June 11 for a trip to Europe, Palestine and Syria, returning in the country in September. Another traveler is Mrs. John E. Van Stuy of Arlington, who has sailed for Holland to visit relatives in her native country.

She will also travel in France, Italy and Germany.

Washington, June 7.—The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia did itself credit Monday and bided to remove from the Judiciary the charge of stacking the cards against progressive legislation.

This decision looked upon as putting an end to a long and bitter controversy. When a similar case from Oregon went up to the Supreme Court of the United States the Oregon law was sustained by the vote of four to four. However, since that time a number of things have happened.

In the first place Justice Brandeis, who was disqualified because he had been counsel in the Oregon case, is free to vote on new minimum wage cases, and he has been an ardent and most able upholder of the principle. Indeed the cause owes as much to his legal ability as to any other assistance it has had in the country.

To Father John Ryan of the Catholic University it is also greatly indebted, and Father Ryan has been an interested follower of the fight in the district.

In the second place, Chief Justice White is dead and he was one of the justices opposed to these laws. It is not at all probable that anybody who is appointed to take his place will oppose this form of protection to women.

Opinion along this line is developing rapidly. Certainly whoever is appointed to succeed Chief Justice White will be expected to take the conservative of today is not the conservative of tomorrow.

If the Legislature has the power to deal with having conditions improved, it is not likely to be able to legislate that women shall not be employed at wages below a certain minimum standard. The test case demanded more than the usual question. It showed that the Supreme Court, when Chief Justice White was alive to vote on the other side, resented a point where it would not undertake to kill social legislation on thin excuses about due process of law.

BOLSHIEVISM ARGUMENT.
The argument against the constitutionality of the law was along the line that if we started on the line of public welfare legislation we shall find ourselves ultimately abolishing the right of property.

Chief Justice Smythe knocked that argument out in two different ways. The first answer was like that of Justice Holmes in the rent case. It was not the business of the court, he said, to argue about what might happen sometime but to decide the case in front of it.

But he did stop there. He let loose his opinion also about the reasonableness of that kind of regulation. According to him Bolshievism is far from being encouraged by the law. That our institutions as they now exist are capable of protecting the weak. In his opinion the very best way to prevent the advent of Bolshievism in this country is to show that our institutions are elastic enough to allow us to obtain the protection we need without any revolutionary measures.

Pictorial Flashes of Fact, Fads and Fashions Gathered Everywhere

YOU'RE WRONG. This isn't a school for instruction in the age-old art of hugging. It's a class of young folk learning how to save the life of a drowning person, and incidentally, to keep their own precious self from going to a watery death. (W. W.)

RAPID TRANSIT. This man-power street car is China's idea of speedy trolley service. At that it's about as good as we get in Boston sometimes. (W. W.)

TERTING TONIGHT. On the old roof for beauty. New version of old song. Miss Valis, Parisian dancer, now in N. Y., says last life is best for health. Like roofing it. All modern conveniences. (W. W.)

New for Old

A SKIN GAME. But very essential to the woman who would stay young. Dr. L. R. Stoddard, above and at left, restoring youth to wrinkled faces by scarless surgery. Incision is made, scissors are thrust in and rough tissue cut out. Patient gets well in 24 hours. Operation leaves no blemishes. (W. W.)

SATURDAY NIGHT IN JAPAN. You are now looking at the latest thing in bath tubs in the land of Nippon, at least in the red districts. The water is heated by a primitive stove with a drain pipe flue. What matters after all if the object is achieved. That's the real issue, not expensive life. (W. W.)

WHITE HOUSE GUEST. Latest photo of Miss Abigail Harding, sister of the President, who has returned to her home. (W. W.)

BRINY MEDIC. Mrs. Quill Muller, winner of highest honors among the first women to be graduated from Columbia Medical School. (C. & C.)

UP SHE GOES! An interesting scene during the first national celebration for German working youths, held at Welmar. Both young and old men and women traveled hundreds of miles to take part in the festivities. This stunt is called the "rebound" and consists of tossing the prettiest girl into the air on the crossed arms of boys. (W. W.)

SOME KICKS! Posture, these shoes are the latest thing in footwear for the smartly dressed woman. Dazzlingly called "futurist shoes." (Chadler)

KANINE KING. See me and my new coiffure. I won first prize at the London dog show. I am a French bull and I bear the dignified name of Berksiana Punch-elli. (C. & C.)

SNAPPY BUT PLAYFUL. We refer, of course, to the turtles held by Mrs. Wanda Arena, wife of U. S. naval officer. His name is "Figueroa" and she rescued him from a native soup tureen in Guatemala. He is 168 years old. She is—but that's none of your business. (W. W.)

TICKLE THE KEYS. And they do it so well that they tickle President Harding, who is fussy about his typing. These two young ladies are Miss Eva B. Uhl, left, and Miss Gertrude Masten, personal stenographers to the President. They have taken his notes since he was first elected a Senator. Nameless to mention, they are pleasant and efficient. (W. W.)

FASHION NOTE. This hat of printed organdie, with a fluted edge of the same material, is cool and attractive and is one of the most popular modes. (W. W.)

BOBBED ROYALTY! Apparently the bobbed hair fad is popular in Rumania, for here is Princess Ileana, youngest of the royal children, with the latest hair dress for women. Most beautiful Princess in Europe, according to many. (W. W.)

Fight for Continuance of Library Service

Definite assurance has been received from Charles H. Forbes, director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, by the Boston American that it has been successful in its big fight for the retention of library service for disabled veterans in the government hospital.

According to an opinion just rendered by the Controller of the Treasury, the director of the War Risk Insurance Bureau has the authority to suspend the service that has been operated by the American Library Association since shortly after the country entered the war.

He said his Bureau will have over the equipment and staff of the library Association on July 1 and continue the work as a part of the Bureau's library service.

PROSECUTING VICTORY.
The announcement will be good news not only to the men in the hospitals of New England but also to those receiving hospital care and treatment from the Federal government in every section of the country.

The director of the Federal government hospital which operates a War Risk Library, the Victory, therefore is a welcomed one for the Boston American as an influential ally.

The Bureau of the American Library Association for the past year has been a constant source of trouble to the Boston American. It was the work of the Boston American to win the fight for the continuance of the library service for disabled veterans in the government hospital.

A few days before the case was argued and when the American Library Association was in the process of withdrawing its appeal from the Federal court, the Boston American was able to secure the continuance of the library service for disabled veterans in the government hospital.

APPEAL TO BOSTON AMERICAN.

PUBLIC WORKS ABLE-BODIED

Work of Reconstruction Is Started—Total Loss in State $40,000,000

By International News Service
Pueblo, Col., June 7.—Optimistic despite two terrible flood disasters since 1917, Pueblo today started the work of reconstruction. Scrapers are at work on the streets and the mud and general wreckage are being cleared away.

At an early hour this morning 12 bodies had been found, ten of them having just been recovered on the St. Charles river.

Reports from eastern Colorado and southwestern Kansas indicate that while the Arkansas flows, it is feared that the thousands of acres of rich farm lands were being inundated there had been no loss of life.

The great flood that has been pouring eastward, having passed Lamar, near the Kansas state line, Garden City, Kansas, reported grand lands flooded.

PROPERTY RECOVERED.
The property loss in Pueblo was estimated at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 and in the State at large at more than $40,000,000. Pueblo was at its worst light water or sea level.

With the assistance by Lieutenant Paul P. Newton, in charge of the city under the flood, of an order directing every able-bodied man in the city for labor the work of reconstruction is being carried on.

Private R. R. Control Danger to American Democracy

Our friend the Boston Post criticizes an editorial in which we stated that Vice-President Coolidge was wrong when he said that it would cost the government more money to purchase the railroad securities than to pay off the war debts.

The Post assumes in its criticism of the Boston American's criticism of Mr. Coolidge's statement that the alternative of government ownership and operation is letting the present owners get themselves out of their own mess.

But that is just what the present owners do not intend to do, and that is just what the Boston Post will not insist that they do.

A perfectly good idea of the Post's attitude on the railroad question may be found in the question which it propounds to us:

Does our contemporary believe that political appointees, "deserving Democrats," or "deserving Republicans," have more about running the railroads than the men who have grown up in the business, or that these politicians could run the roads for less than 5% per cent?

Now that question shows that the Post has swallowed the whole private management propaganda and has no idea of the inefficiency and graft which has characterized the private management of our railroads in the last generation, a mismanagement which is natural and inherent in the private control and management of public functions. It indicates that the Post does not know what even big bankers and the men who have made most out of railroads in the past are privately admitting, namely, that the railroads are wretchedly operated and will continue to be wretchedly operated until the public takes control. It indicates that the Post has no idea of the character of government operation during the war, and believes that private management is superior to the capacity which the government exhibited in the management of our railroads during the war.

It also means that the Post will support the private managers in their attempt to make the public pay the cost of railroad failures, as they are now proposing to do. It indicates that the Post will support the demands of the railroads, just now proposed to the Interstate Commerce Committee of the United States Senate, that the government subsidize the railroads by increasing the charges for the use by trucks of the public highways, by sabotaging the existing and great waterways, thus increasing the rates paid for traffic over the waterways, and by the several other kinds of subsidies which the railroads propose the government shall give them to make them profitable at the expense of the American people.

Will the Post oppose these subsidies? The railroads have already received enormous subsidies within a year. Did the Post oppose them? Vice-President Coolidge knows, and the Post ought to know, that the railroads must receive more aid from the government or the stockholders are likely to be wiped out.

Will, then, the Post answer in the affirmative its own treacherous question?

Why not let the unfortunate who own the railroads take the losses themselves, instead of forcing the white elephant on the government?

The Post knows that it will continue to do everything in its power to make the American people, through its government, pay these railroad losses.

If that is so, will it cost the government anything to purchase the railroads? No. But it will make great difference in both financing and politics. Government purchase will involve the assumption of a bankrupt railroad system and its gradual development into an efficient servant of our national well-being.

The other method would involve a perpetual pouring of good money from the public treasury down the rotten rat hole of private management forever. It would involve more. It would involve the continued impairment of our public character by the railroad lobbies, campaign funds and other practices which have characterized private management of the railroads and always will do so, no matter what private managers may claim. While the railroads have been the most efficient servant of our national well-being, the private management of these great quasi-public corporations, our American democracy will always be in danger.

Freedom of the Press

A Strange Metamorphosis of Parties

COPYRIGHT, 1921, STAR COMPANY

Postmaster-General Hays makes this public announcement:

Law safeguarding the freedom of the press must and shall be scrupulously observed.

This is the most important announcement made by a member of the Cabinet since the new administration assumed its duties.

It is not often that an administration has to deal with questions so fundamental that our forefathers considered them important enough to put into the bill of rights of our Constitutions. It is not often that a fundamental right safeguarded by our forefathers is so flagrantly violated and scorned as it was by the Wilson Democratic administration.

Postmaster-General Hays makes good his general declaration by restoring to the second-class mailing privilege, the Liberator, a radical Socialist paper, whose doctrines would be repudiated by ninety-nine out of every hundred Americans. The government has also paid to the Liberator a large sum of money, which is the loss suffered by the Liberator for the violation of its rights.

This indicates a strange metamorphosis of parties, for a real Democrat to contemplate when the party that is descended from Alexander Hamilton is seen restoring the constitutional freedom of opinion, of press and of assembly, which had been destroyed by the party which is descended from Thomas Jefferson.

Soldiers to Have Their Books

Another Victory for Disabled Veterans in Hospitals Is Won by the Boston American

Announcement is made in the news columns of another hard fight won by the Boston American for disabled heroes.

The threatened collapse of library service in government hospitals has been averted.

This good news comes in a letter from Director C. R. Forbes of the War Risk Insurance Bureau. It is his official recognition of the fact that it was the Boston American which fought this good fight.

A few months ago the American Library Association made it known that it would not be able to carry on the library service after June 30 because of lack of resources.

It was then that the former service men of New England—those in and those lucky enough not to be in hospitals—again appealed to their "tried and true friend, the Boston American," to come to the rescue. That was the characterization of this newspaper by the men in the Parker Hill Hospital. It was typical of appeals from other hospitals and American Legion posts. And the response of their "tried and true friend" was characteristic and successful.

High Heels Aid Feet

LONDON, June 7.—Out of a statement that high heels are best for women, made by Dr. W. H. Trethowan, M. B., F. R. C. S., may develop one of the most unique quack cures ever staged.

"High heels are advantageous in supporting weak feet," Dr. Trethowan told members of the Institute of Hygiene. "The strain on the long arch of the foot must necessarily lessen in proportion as the heel is raised."

"You've got to show me," said a Manchester business man, A. R. Edwards. "Put up or shut up. I'll bet you a woman cannot walk naturally with high-heeled shoes. I'll enter two women wearing low-heeled shoes against two women wearing high-heeled shoes and let them compete in a twenty-mile walking race."

Edwards says he has his champions already picked. One is a twenty-eight and unmarried. The other is thirty and is the mother of five children. The result would be judged by the speed of the walkers and the condition of their feet at the end of the race.

Dr. Trethowan has not answered the challenge yet, but his friends expect him to come forward with evidence to demonstrate the efficacy of the Cuban heel. He advocates ballroom dancing in addition to high heels to achieve a correct walking posture.

Pot Power of Patient People

What get your goat today? You'll feel better if you tell the Post Editor of the Boston American about it.

WHY is it in millions of squander hundreds of thousands of dollars on women of questionable character, when that money could be put to a far better use in relieving suffering and want?—UNEMPLOYED.

WHY does my best fellow call me when my father is home—MARGIE.

Maternity Bill

Editor Boston American:

The health officers from all over the country who have just met in Boston endorsed the Sheppard-Towner bill for the better care of motherhood and infancy.

More women are said to have perished from this bill than for any other measure in recent years.

It provides for giving Federal aid to States that wish to furnish instruction in the hygiene of maternity and infancy through public health nurses, consultation centers, etc., and teaching of the household arts that affect the welfare of mothers and children.

About 266,666 babies died under one year old in the United States in 1918, and about 20,000 mothers died from childbirth. Most of these deaths were needless. In countries where the proper care of mother and child is taught by public health nurses, the death rates have been greatly cut down. It is no wonder this bill has the backing of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent Teacher Associations, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Women's Trade Union League, the Consumers' League, the American House Economics Association, the United States Association of University Women and the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, as well as the American Association of University Women.

The opposition of some doctors to the bill is due mainly to misunderstanding of its provisions. It has been represented as compulsory, as very costly, as an interference with "State medicine," and as threatening the ruin of private practice.

But doctors who have worked in communities where there are public health nurses have found them a great help, and would not willingly go back to the old way.

Copyright, 1921, International Feature

WHAT CAN I SAY? "How am I going to increase my income?" is the burning question with hundreds of men today.

"How can I get to be my own boss?" has been your thought for a long time.

Usually it occurs to you that you could sell something. Have you ever tried to sell anything?

If not, try it before you give up your steady job.

It is not so easy to sell goods as you may think. You must create a desire to buy, and you must inspire confidence in your word for it, in your prospective customer.

You must be able to read faces and attitudes and little unconscious gestures on the part of the one you want to sell to, and you must be able to think quickly just how to counteract the impulse against you.

You are bound to have presented objections to your proposition, so be prepared.

Taming the Wild Flowers

At a flower show held in New York city, one naturally expects to see hot-house plants or at most such pampered exotics as appear in cultivated gardens.

At the recent annual show, however, there was an exhibit that was a veritable wild garden, comprising exclusively the plants and flowers of the New England fields and woodlands.

The developer of this garden, Edward Gillett, has made a hobby of bringing the wildlings into the dooryard, and teaching them to make themselves at home there.

Now that Mr. Gillett has shown the way, there will be many amateur who will not be satisfied unless a considerable corner of his garden is given over to wild and native plants and flowers.

And he is not alone. The garden is given over to wild and native plants and flowers. And he is not alone. The garden is given over to wild and native plants and flowers.

SWORD OF SPIRIT IS GANDHI'S WEAPON

By Taraknath Das,

National Executive Secretary, Friends of Freedom for India.

GANDHI, the leader of the revolutionary movement in India, counsels the practice of non-violence by force to the imperialist of Great Britain. He says:

"I want India to realize that she has a soul which cannot perish, and which can rise triumphant over every physical force and defy the physical might of the whole world."

Non-violence does not mean meek submission to the will of the evil-doer, but it means putting one's soul against the will of the tyrant. Working under this law, it is possible for a single individual to defy the whole might of an unjust empire.

Impossible Done

Is Gandhi wrong? The impossible has been done and will be done. In South Africa, Gandhi, with the help of one hundred and sixty thousand of his countrymen, carried out a successful non-violent strike against the British government, winning, after twenty years, everything he asked.

The story is too long to tell here, suffice to say that he practiced there what he is preaching and practicing today in his motherland.

It must be said that Gandhi had faith at first in the willingness of the British to give India a decent deal—particularly in view of the splendid assistance the Indians had rendered to the empire in her time of trouble, but when after the Amritsar massacre General Dyer, who had directed the shooting in the park of Lal Bahadur Shastri, was promoted by the British government, even this saint lost his faith in the intention of that government to treat India fairly, and turned towards the path of non-violence.

He is now a supporter of the empire to an avowed enemy. He solemnly pledged to destroy its rule in his country and when he turned his back on the empire, he turned his back on the empire.

Both of them illustrate the operation of the human mind. The human mind is in the realm of human psychology.

The Standpat

Curiously enough, the standpat is the standpat. One does not want to be caught condoning him. On the other hand, there is nearly as much to be said in his favor as there is in his disfavor, which may be doing something more dignified than trying to represent a perpetual motion.

Each kind is obeying the law of its own being, and demands no particular credit or blame for such obedience.

Just here is the abiding difference between human nature and every other phase of the universe: inertia is a property or principle of physical matter, and cannot apply to the human mind without our consent.

It matters little to stay put or keep moving—albeit matter, it may be moving itself.

But the human being is a free agent. Always and all ways he can help himself.

Matter, in motion or at rest, is to be acted upon by any external force to follow the law of inertia, to obey the law of force, to leave things as they are—whether actively wrong or merely passively right.

THE LAW OF LAZINESS PRIMARY INSTINCT

By Dr. Charles Fleischer,

Copyright, 1921, by Francis & Taylor, Inc.

CAN you control your laziness as well as your activity?

Any school child will gladly inform you that self-preservation is the first law of nature.

But even grown-ups will not be so quick to tell you that the law of nature is the law of nature.

—and he sometimes calls it the Law of Laziness.

Further, we may say that, self-preservation is the primary instinct, the law of laziness is our secondary primary instinct.

Really, there is such a thing as a tremendous potent law in our spiritual makeup—as the law of nature which, with self-contradiction, is here called our secondary primary instinct.

And this law the generally recognized first principle a good race—as the dominant influence in human nature and human life.

Principle of Inertia

Recall the physical principle of inertia. You remember this principle registers the want of power in matter to change its position from rest to motion, or from motion to rest.

In other words, as object at rest tends to stay at rest, and an object in motion tends to remain in motion, unless in either case acted upon by some force outside of the object at rest or in motion.

Applying that law to human and human affairs, we can see that most of us, most of the time, are under its sway. We are likely to stay put or to keep moving unless subjected to new outside influences.

Hence the standard state of mind, and equally hence the radical tendency.

Both of them illustrate the operation of the human mind. The human mind is in the realm of human psychology.

The Standpat

Curiously enough, the standpat is the standpat. One does not want to be caught condoning him. On the other hand, there is nearly as much to be said in his favor as there is in his disfavor, which may be doing something more dignified than trying to represent a perpetual motion.
